TEN THOUSAND HOURS

In this day and age of easy access to plentiful information on the Internet, there are those out there who consider lawyers as an unnecessary expense. You may have surfed a few pages and read a blog or two, and think you know what to do when it comes to X, Y and Z.

But as the wise man once said, it is not until you know a bit, that you begin to realise just how much you really don't know.

Our blogs may have imparted some knowledge upon you about claims, documents and so forth, and coupled with the odd occasion where you got away without our help, you may think you are riding high.

The truth of it is that to get where we are, we have spent many thousands of hours studying the law, experiencing the law and being trained in new developments in the law.

Knowledge without experience is not effective. Experience but no knowledge is like a rudderless ship.

It is this experience and knowledge that you call upon EVERY time you engage our firm to represent you.

Although this doesn't come cheap, at the same time knowledge and experience means countless hours are not wasted pursuing steps that just won't work. Efficiency becomes the norm.

So next time, don't wield a blunt knife, but rather one that is sharp and honed to near perfection.
